, Snow and Freezes. For two or three days past the earth in these part has been whitened by a light but genuine mantle of snow. The weather succeeding its fall has been the coldest upon our record since 1836. Fahrenheit stood one morning at 80 helow zero. Ice upon good sized ond muddles' was strong enough to hear horses and buggies. The freeze continues as we write. Farewell; fall-oats! But its a great time for hanging up

M. W. ABNEY, S. The Southern Light. The January number of this journal is before us full of interesting matter, original and selected. It scarcely becomes us, who are its publishers, to speak of the style in which it is gotten up. The marked improvement of the new issue cannot fail to strike the public eye. We only wish our friend of the Light would make greater exertions to send abroad, more extensively, his lucubrations and our handiwork. We wish too that both he and his associate would resolve within-themselves to bestow a large portion of their time and attention upon the pages of their young publication. Thus alone can any paper be made really deserving of public patronage. With a Monthly this is peculiarly the case. It is not regarded as is an offhand daily, or even a weekly. Is is looked upon more as a book; and its preparation ought to evince care, thought and study, on the part of its conductors. With this kind of attention the editors of the Southern Light can easily attain success. Without it, neither this nor any other monthly, can in any wise flourish. SCIENTIFIC ENTERTAINMENT.

WE are told there is to be a Scientific Entertainment, by Mr. H. JENNINGS, one night this week, either It is her true ground for the nonce. Whether it will ration ball. When sted the public will see what, when, and where, the entertainment will be. This much we can say in advance: that it will begin with Phantisma-gorian illustrations of Scriptural views, will proceed thence to Astronomical teachings, and will wind up with "Amusing Comic Scenes."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. Attention is directed to sundry fresh advertisements.

Mr. PENN's, upon garden seeds, is exactly in season. His views upon that subject are entirely correct, and we are glad he has laid in so full a supply of seeds. Mr. SMITH's, in the business of Carriages Buggies &c, ought to be read by all. F. L. S., is a clever fellow and deserves a good share of public patronage.

The additional advertisements of CRANE, and of SHEAR, Augusta Ga., also deserve attention. We were down the other day and found the Augusta Dry Goods market a most inviting one, CRANE and SHEAR among the best.

HON. W. W. BOYCE. We are pleased to see that this talented Congress man of ours is making himself felt in Washington, upon that most important of all the practical question now before the country, "the Tariff." Sometime since, Mr. Boyce took an early occasion to place before the country his views upon this interesting subject. We admired, at the time, the perspicuity of his remarks, the method of his argument and the tenor of the policy he advocated; and we have been expecting to hear more from him upon this great topic. We have not been disappointed. Early as the debate has been sprung upon this question during the present session, we find him, ike a true knight at his post, armed cap-a-pie, and ready at all points. The State of South Carolina looks to him with confidence, and feels assured that his ability and intelligence will carry out, as far as possible, her well-known principles in this regard. Mr. Boyce is an honest and a faithful politician. By his independance and intelligence, he has commanded the respect of our National Legislature.

Let him go on boldly, and he will deserve, and receive, the plaudits of an admiring constituency. "PLOUGH, LOOM & ANVIL." This is a neat agricultural journal, published in. REVIEW.

A medical friend has kindly placed upon our table an able number of this publication. After a careful perusal of its pages, we agree with him in regarding it one of the boldest and best journals of the kind that has ever fallen under our notice. Its editor, C. HAPPOLDT M. D., is evidently the man for his position; direct, explicit, independent and well-informed. The style and execution of the work are equal to those of any of its compeers, North or South. Each number comprises one hundred and forty-four octavo pages, and contains a steel-engraved portrait of a distinguished Medical man. Price, $4 per annum, payable in advance.

Although not upon our exchange list, we take res pleasure in recommending this Review to the physicians of our acquaintance. It is not only a Southern work; but it is in every sense an admirable and a THREE GIRLS. A number of persons doubtless, besides Moore, advantages in Great Brittain's liands in case of war, have been visited with three girl children in succession : but very few of them have had the balm of consolation so beautifully applied as in this epigram addressed by ATKINEON to his friend:

I'm sorry, dear A core, there's a damp to your joy, Nor think my old strain of mythology stupid, When I say that your wife had a right to a boy— For Venus is nothing without a young Cupid. But since Fate the boon that you wished for refuses, By granting three gir's to your happy embraces,
He meant, when you wands red abroad with the Muses,
That your wife should be circled at home with the

This will do for several persons hereabouts. As for our single self, we need no such salvo. The truth is, we've come to think that boys are abominable nuisances, and era'll have none of 'em.

A POLITICAL DIALOGUE. Extremist .- I understand you to say that you were Nullifier in 1833. Conservative .- I was scarcely of sufficient years to take a position knowingly at that time. But my feelings all ran that way. My friends were nullifiers; those whom I admired were nullifiers; Mr. Calhoun, Mr. McDupfie, Gov. HAYNE, Judge Butler, and many other distinguished men, were nullifiers; the almost universal shout of my State was for Nullification; and ____, in short, I was a nullifier. Extremist .- Very well. And you were also a secessionist in 1851 !

Conservative .- Emphatically , YES. Extremist .- A nullifier in '33 and a secessionist i 51 and now a conservative !- how do you reconcile his last position with your former faith?

Conservative .- I find no difficulty in my own mind however patent the seeming inconsistency may present itself to yours. My conscientious desire as a politician always was-(of course you understand me to mean since my mind has been at all inclined to the consideration of such matters)-always was, to see advanced, in triumph and in glory, the great princi-ples of our Constitution; the great elements of our Confederation's strength, the mightiest one of which is the sovereignty of the individual States; and the equal rights of American citizens. Nullification although now exploded as a political remedy, did (in the instance of '33) no little good. Even those opposed to the policy have been constrained to admit. hat happy results rapidly followed its agitation in South Carolina; And this was doubtless so, not from any inherent strength in the measure itself, but on account of the high objects of justice and equality had in view by its advocates. We were nullifiers in South Carolina, not to dissolve the Union, but to reform the overnment.

Extremist .- And will you tell me that your Secession movement was characterized by a like conserva

Conservative.-As far as the strength and wisdon of that party is affected by your enquiry, I answer, it was. There were a good many Hotspurs in our ranks, who descanted upon the merits of that crisis upon pure disunion grounds. They were disunionists per se. Not so with the real worth of the party. The Secession record will show, to the satisfaction of every impartial man, that the sons of Carolina were prompted to that effort as a last resort, to stay the encroachments of an unscrupulous and unconstitutional majority. Of course the proposed measure was a disunion one in name. But who believes, now, that (if successful) it would have proven other than a most powerful conservative measure? Had South Carolina seceded, there would have been no blood spilt. There would have been no revenue cutters to threaten her sea-port. But the event would have placed a great question before the American Congress. It would have been a question between South Carolina and the General Government, in the decision of which the voice of the slave States would have been potent. It would have precipitated the trial-fight between Constitutional patriotism and Higher Law fanaticism, which our present political captains tell us must come on sooner or later. The Secessionists felt that this was the real strength of their movement; and it was this that gave them boldness and zeal. Their effort failed. They yielded gracefully to the majority of their State brethern. A few were chagrined, and rashly swore that they were done battling for the Constitution, the South and every other object of political hope. But the great body of that party accepted the decision against them as an adequate condemnation of their policy. The old divisions reased. The only field of operations since practicable, is that upon which the Democracy wages war against both its ancient and its new-fangled fces. Upon that field are all our sister States of the South, energetically engaged. Upon that field is marshalled, now, a great army that is to fight out the identical ends sought to be obtained by the Carolina Nulliflers of '33 and

-But do you not see that Abolitionist tampent at the North, and that our only hope is in Loins in the South for the sake of the South? Conservative:—Abulitionism is indeed rampant, as god say; and it is no less true that the Union of the South is the true arc of her safety. But united how? and for what? I answer, united by the bonds of patriotism and of interest; united upon Constitutional principles; united to achieve a triumph in the Union; united to save the whole country, first; and, if that shall be impossible, then united to save ourselves. This is the understanding of our position, as entertained by the entire South except a few such inveterate, unreasonable and impracticable extremists as the Carolina Secessionists of '51. And there stands vourself. Extremist .- Say what you will, I am for South Carolina standing aloof, as she has done, till the time for action arrives. Conservative. Then you are either a Southern fanatic or a Southern fillibuster, and I have no more to say to you.

"CALHOUN DEMOCRACY." Is it asking too much of the Columbia Times, to define what it means by a "Calhoun Democracy" as contradistinguished from a "Jefferson Democracy," or as compared with the Sound Democracy of to-day. We cannot imagine that Mr. CALHOUN, if now alive, would be other than a Democrat on the platform of the Cincinnatti Convention. There was nothing in his life, either at its morning, noon or evening, to warrant a different opinion. Deep as was his solicitude for the welfare of his section, he was yet a conservative of the Union to the last, and only yearned for another hour upon the floor of the Senate Chamber to point the way of safety for his country, his whole country. We therefore demur to the appropriation of his name by the present ultra wing of Southern Democrats. That name, we earnestly insist, belongs to the Constitutional men of the Union, and not to any limited sat of seceders from the Democratic Party. It would be ding near to get out of the way, at the same the proper credit entered on the Books. Without doing great injustice to the memory of John C. Calmonent raising the gun and firing. At the indoing great injustice to the memory of John C. Those of Georgia have for several years been known | children rushed from the house screaming, while as "Wild Cat Banks." Why, or wherefore, we are mable to tell, unless it be that their condition and prospects were particularly squally. The Georgia edior, it seems, had gone so far as to entitle sundry Banks of Tennessee "One horse Banks;" whereupon his Tennessee neighbor replies with indignant scorn, repells the Livery-stable incinnation, and advices the press of Georgia to warn the country, and especially to put " Georgians on their guard," against those cat-

amount speculations. It is amusing to us, of South Carolina, to watch of Lexington District. these little squabbles between our neighbors of Georgia and Tennessee. We, who never had two banks to Mr. J. W. S. Bowes, of this District, and Miss fail within our limits, can scarcely realize this species

It appears impracticable to establish a line of telegraphic wires between America and England, without leaving both termini on British soil and of course under the control of British power. The objection having been raised that this would be placing immense Lieut. Mauny thus reasons in reply :

"Our fellow-citizens who contrived, planned and "Our fellow-citizens who contrived, planned and brought forward this noble work are too sagacious and patriotic not to have perceived that, lying as it does wholly within the control of a foreign Power, that Power, were it a nation of Goths and Vandals, might turn the path they were about to make for the lightning along the bed of the ocean against their own country in war; but they knew the people on the other side, and trusted to higher and nobler sentiments. The British Government interfere with the free use of that cable even in war! The spirit of the age is against such an act, and no state within the pale of against such an act, and no state within the pale of Christendom, much less that great English nation of noble people would dare to do such a thing. Has the distinguished Lieutenant forgotten how Eugland behaved towards NAPOLEON the Great, when he threw himself upon the generosity of her "noble people?" That page in her history might teach him that she is capable of anything, in guarding against the chances of war.

if one end rested under our flag? We remember hearing a talented daughter of John C. Calhoun remark years ago, that the Atlantic's wide water was our protection against European politics, European norals, and European influences of every kind. The emark made an impression upon us which has never een erased. And we still seriously doubt the wisdom of any step towards increasing the intercommunication of the two hemispheres.
